Scholarship Application Evaluation

Please assign numerical scores to specific areas, then total scores at the bottom for your overall evaluation of this application.

Maximum total score is 100

1. Likelihood of Acceptance at an Accredited Institution - Maximum 10 points.

This should be determined from your evaluation of the candidate's graduation records, GED certificate, transcripts, grade point average, work history related to the desired course or study or school, etc. If there is evidence the candidate has already been accepted, or is enrolled with, an accredited institution, the maximum 10 points should be awarded.

Points: _____

2. Community Service/Volunteerism, Extracurricular, Employment - Maximum 30 points.

Please evaluate the quality of the applicant's activities in the above areas and assign an overall score. These areas are not to be evaluated separately because individual circumstances may or may not have permitted activity in one or another. For instance, outstanding volunteer work may outweigh a lack of employment history – or vice versa

Points: _____

3. Essay – Maximum 30 points

Please evaluate the essay for clarity, and whether or not you feel it adequately expresses the candidate's educational and career goals, reasons for wanting a scholarship, and any special circumstances. The essay should not exceed one page, should be legible, and should use grammar and spelling in relationship to the applicants educational level.

Points: _____

4. Letters of Recommendation – 15 points maximum each (total 30 points)

Letters should discuss the applicant's demonstrated qualities of character, initiative, honesty, achievement, and leadership. Recommendation letters from schools, employers, and religious or charitable organizations must be typed on letterhead, with full contact information, and signed by the writer. Dear Sir or Madam,

Given how days are as simultaneous as most days, every day, it would normally start with a quick brunch before working out before losing ten seconds to relax afterwards. Thus far, it's rather fair before to not bother because there's nothing else valuable than time. Of course, temporarily speaking if it had to be too often shall we say reversible than I wouldn't mind being anywhere else but home if I am still able to use it to do what I do best, and what I do best isn't very simple. I have a dream which I can't seek in front of me. Although I often confidently keep my history personal, I can't remember the last time I felt like sharing them as they were cartoons in newspapers. However, I never stopped drawing about the places I've seen, been, and gone. I also thought about how high my chance is of making these exciting adventures into a classic graphic novel, or comic.

Whenever I took the time to work, I spent less continuing my fifth story for this series I've made up in mind. It's very upsetting how I can't get used to walking home late at night for anything else before repeating the next day. On the other hand however, it's worth the hours. Unfortunately, I wish this couldn't help me fall asleep during the day.

I grew up less finicky after things got weirdly miscalculated with the family. Father missing, Mom raising four kids in a single bedroom apart, but suddenly finding two more three years later, Eldest brother. Former narcissist, now loving father and husband. Second sister, single mother of three children, and the best. Middle brother, the one with the treasure chest, my former arch nemesis, and my first best friend. Like I'd trade them for the world, they're way too important than anything else in this selfish, cruel world. .

In essence, to what I intend to achieve if possible to attend Lone Star College, I want to become a Graphic Novelist, and create Manga and or comics for a couple of series of stories I've been working on.

Normally I don't get the idea of socializing, and I can't imagine how I make people smile. However, I wouldn't ever feel like wondering when I could be thinking about the next person, place, and thing.

Sincerely,

To whom this may concern,

I am humbly writing this letter in support of my neighbor, Hugo Martinez's AHMA East Texas Scholarship Application. I have known Hugo since the day my grandson brought in such a wonderful kind young man who was positively willingly eager to help me around my own apartment. He helps me clean, he does my chores, check my mail, he even fixes my televisions left and right like he knows what piece he misses. Furthermore, he's only there when he feels like waiting to have someone call him for favors. He's well talented, very focused, super friendly, extremely loyal, and dedicated to what he seeks in front of him. He wishes to study Graphic Novelty, and to become a Public Comic Book Artist.

Thus I would deeply consider this to be a good opportunity for him to take his studies to the next level, and highly suggest recommending a chance for him to show you and everyone around what type of gentleman Hugo wishes to be. If you wish to speak personally, call me anytime.
